

A Superpower I Wish I Had

Annah Allwin

I wish I had the superpower of running really fast. It would be amazing! I would be running everywhere like Sonic the hedgehog. Think of how much I could help people. If my mom tells me to go get groceries, or help get something I could do it without shedding a tear. I would just be gone, and come back. Plus I could run to Asia my home continent, or India my country. I could even say hi to my family, and come back in ten seconds! I really wish I had the power. The truth is I love science, and I want to become a doctor. I just don't know how speed relates to science. It relates to physics, but not the medical field. Maybe I could run, and save patients in different rooms. There are also many ways it would benefit me. I could race my brother to the car, run away when I get in trouble, or maybe receive a Guinness world record. I could be the fastest kid on the planet! My life would become so much more easier, and I could make a difference. I'm not talking about twenty miles per hour, or thirty miles per hour. I'm talking speed of light! Maybe not exactly speed of light, but close to that. I'm sure one day I'd prove that's possible. I'm only nine years old, but I can do what I can to help.

I really hope I get that even though that's not something I need. Maybe one day I'll be saving people across the world and beyond!

I know I can't plan my future, but that's my dream! There might be some cons, but thinking about the pros make me forget the cons. I hope one day me and my friends form a superhero group, and save this world. Or at least help out since we're just kids. I love helping out at home, and if I get superpowers it would be so much more easier. I hope I get the superpower. My goal is to help many people, and to make their lives better. That is why I want this superpower.
