It was the last day of School. Jake was both excited and sad. He got his backpack and ran to the bus. He sat with his best friends Kate and Jimmy. Kate said, "I was really excited so I woke up early" Jake and Jimmy both together "Me too".

When they reached their classroom 482, they suddenly fell into a really big hole and when they reached the bottom, they ended up in a vibrant Jungle. "How are we in the middle of a Jungle?" cried Kate. Suddenly they were attacked by monkeys. Kate had an idea to give up our lunchboxes to escape.

They ventured out further and found a dusty map near a tree. Jake wondered if it could help them escape as he picked up the antique paper. Jake spotted number lines on top and side of the map and many temple symbols and two numbers listed below 8"2'. Jimmy, who was the smartest, thought it could be co-ordinates, so he pulled out his trusty ruler and found the intersection using the map's number lines, pointing to a temple symbol.

They found a compass which they always carried for their geography class and followed it through the maze to reach the ancient temple "This is the place where the monster protects the key" Sure enough the monster came, they poured water from their water bottles on the shiny temple floor and ran and got the key. The monster slipped on the water like they planned. It crashed on the floor causing the ceiling to crack. They ran and unlocked the door and escaped back to their classroom. Hurray!!

Later they heard of an urban myth that if kids wake up too early for the last day of school they can get transported to a different world!
