

The Big Prank

By: Liana Chan- 3rd grade

Word Count: 299

Hi! My name is Kookies. My monster friends and I love to pull pranks on innocent victims. Last week we all met to plan the prank of 2025!

Nineteen friends came to my house in Monster Land. We went to the roof to plan. Being the president of the Prank Party, I made the final plan, then we started preparing.

We want to switch the human's cookies for our broccoli flavored ones! In case you didn't know, every monster loves broccoli cookies.

We baked the broccoli cookies. When the humans were asleep, we would quietly and quickly get into our assigned houses. Next, we would switch the regular cookies for our special broccoli ones, and then camouflage them with a touch of magic! Then we'd wait until the morning to see the chaos.

It was time. We snuck through the portal to the human world.

~The Next Morning~

I peered through the window from my hiding spot. Roland sat at the kitchen table nibbling on a cookie. "Yeah, I totally love it, mom." He threw up in his mouth. I chuckled.

My walkie-talkie started making noise. My friends updated me on their assigned kids.

"Come in, this is Brow-knee. My kid's face turned red, and he puked!"

"This is Bo-Ba. My kid shoved half the cookies down his brother's throat, and the other half down the dog's throat!"

"Come in, this is Kakee. My kid is pelting cookies at his sister! Haha!"

I responded, "This is Kookies. My kid is faking it! He actually said he liked them!"

I laughed so much, that the kid almost saw me! Lastly, I snuck in and placed a note in the cookie jar.

To an ungrateful child,
You were mean and deserved a punishment!
Hope you liked the cookies!
From Santa Claus