

The Magic Forest

Mason lived in a small house in the heart of a forest. They had to move there after his dad got a job as a park ranger. His mom worked as a waitress at a coffee shop one hour away from the house. So he and his sister Sarah were home alone a lot . One day after Mason's parents went to work he and Sarah went into the forest. While they were exploring they found a cave. All of a sudden Sarah slipped in and fell into the cave. "HELP" she cried. Mason grabbed a stick and tried to help her out but he too fell into the cave. "What do we do!" Sarah screamed tears forming in her eyes. The slope leading to the cave was too steep to climb. We can wait for mom and dad to get home. They'll realize we're missing and come looking for us. " Mom and dad don't come home till dark!" Sarah shouted crying now. " It's ok, we can stay here till then. We'll be fine." He said with doubt in his voice. But then, they saw something in the corner of the cave. It was a door. Mason slowly approached the door checking if it was unlocked. Sure enough it was. "Should we go in?" Sarah asked out of curiosity. "I don't know," said Mason . " Where does it go?" asked Sarah. "There's only one way to find out," Mason said as he slowly opened the door. The door led to grassland that seemed endless. They could see what appeared to be a castle in the distance. All of a sudden a tiny gnome appeared next to them. “WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE!” the gnome exclaimed. “We went through a door and then we were here.” Mason said. “HOW DID YOU FIND THE DOOR!” The gnome screamed, jumping round frantically. “You're coming with me to see the gnome king and get you out of here.” The gnome said in a calmer voice now. It took a while of walking until they made it to the castle. There were massive gates at the front of it. The gnome pulled a watch out of his pocket, tapped it 5 times and then the gates opened. There were at least 50 hallways leading to different sides of the castle, but one stood out. It had a pure gold door that had a diamond frame. “This is the throne room.” the gnome announced flinging open the doors. There was a throne in the middle of it, and sitting on it was the gnome king. “These humans found the secret door!” the Gnome King yelled his voice echoing across the massive room. “Uh, yes your majesty, I was hoping you could bring them back to the human world.” the gnome said, frightened. “ Fine, but if you are to ever tell anyone about this, I will hunt you down personally” the Gnome King barked. Quickly the two kids shook their heads as they teleported back to the human world.
