

Dad's Last Letter

Dad has a secret, the secret is inside the Room.
A letter is there... only he knows... right?

Ally always wondered why her mom always forbade her to go to her father's room? How did dad die?

Why did her mom freak out and forbid them to do anything that includes ghosts? Why were there screams in the room she wasn't allowed to go in?

She found her answers on Halloween when she was alone. Her mom and sister went shopping.

Now all she needed to do was sneak into her fathers' bedroom and find out the secret.

The only problem was where was the key? Ally searched everywhere in the entire house.

Then she heard another paralyzing death scream from her fathers' room.

She froze.

Then she ran into the door and it bursted open.

She looked around. Everything looked so abnormal. There were papers everywhere. Her dad's computer was cracked and thrown all the way across the room. The whole room looked upside down.

The whole room looked like a disaster except for the bed. It looked just the way it looked when she had last seen her dads room. This memory brought tears from her eyes.

The shiny tear landed on a note from her father. She picked it up and started to read. :-

*Dear Glaze (my beloved wife)
I never told you this and I regret it. Under my bed lies a presence of haunted steps to death. The shadow threatened to kill me when Ally was going to be born. I begged it to leave our family. It is soon going to come, now or then. Just know the count down has begun. I hope God has faith in us and please never tell this to Ally, it will break her heart.*

From love : Signed Leo

Ally splattered more tears on the torn paper. She wrote something on the paper and looked at the bed and heard a scream.

A male scream.

It felt like hearing death. Her heart started to beat fast. She slowly walked to the bed. She slowly touched it and heard the least favorable thing ever.

The Aztec death whistle.

Under the bed.

It felt like it was warning her. About something. But.....
What?

In there, she saw a long, deep tunnel. It was dark and spooky and then a head popped up.

A zombie's head. It was just a head. It looked creepy and stared at her. Then he pulled out an arm and said, "Ready to die? You know you are the reason he is dead..." Ally looked around and a tear landed on the bed and she looked back and nodded. The arm yanked hard at her leg.

Her leg broke. She screamed, tried to run away. Blood was everywhere. The last thing she saw was her letter...

Beep-Beep Beep-Beep.

Ally woke up, sweaty from her bed. "Ally you are oversleeping again," Ally looked. At her doorway was her dad. "You have been screaming and sleeping for the last hour," her dad said.

Ally got up, not long after she heard another paralyzing scream... from her?