

The Best Snow Day Every

I woke up on December 25, 2025 thinking that today was going to be a normal Christmas Day, but that was when everything changed. I thought I was going to just play video games and ride on my four wheeler after opening presents with my family. Just as I headed outside to start the four wheeler, suddenly it started snowing. It was so hard I couldn't even see anything, so I was forced to go back inside. I went to the window and watched the snow fall.

The snow was beautiful, light and fluffy. Snow from my roof was falling off and making a big THUD! The wind outside was so loud I could hear it whistling through the window. It was all so crazy because just before the big storm, there was barely any snow on the ground, and now there was already so much snow!

After opening presents with my family, I went back outside and the snow was up to my knees! Just as I was about to jump off my deck into the snow, I remembered I had to take the time to shovel off the deck, then I had to clean off my parents' cars. After I was done I ran and jumped in the snow. I struggled to get out because of how much snow there was. My brother came out, I hit the snow and my brother ran over and hit me with a snowball. The snowball hit my face. I took off my glove and grabbed a cloth from my jacket pocket to wipe my face from the extremely cold snow that was all along my cheeks. My brother said "Sorry" and we ran up the hill to play King of the Hill. We played together outside for 1 hour and 30 minutes! I ran to the top of the big snow bank that my dad was making. I looked out at my beautiful land. In that moment it felt like time slowed down, I truly took everything in.

The snow slowly falling from the sky, the wind whistling through the air and a feeling of the cold brushing across my face made me realize that you should truly be grateful for what you have in your life. It was a moment that I will remember for years to come.

We went inside and my mom already had hot cocos ready for us. We drank hot cocoa, with delight, as we watched a Christmas movie, together as a family.

I was really excited to ride my 4 wheeler today and spend time inside with my family, but my day did not turn out like that. Instead of riding my fourwheeler and spending time inside, I played King of the Hill on the massive snowbank and took time to slow down and take in everything in life.

My whole day was not as anticipated, but the day was fun. Today was truly the best snow day ever. I really enjoyed the day and slowed down for once. It made me appreciate life and my surroundings more.
