

A walk in my Backyard

One sunny afternoon, I walked through my backyard and saw Nature's superpowers.

I saw tall trees with many branches.

Their leaves help us breathe fresh air.

I saw beautiful flowers with white petals that make pollen for bees. Birds were flying in the blue sky above, chirping after landing on the branches. The grass is green and moist. The pond nearby has ducks swimming in it. I fed the ducks some bread. I saw two rabbits hopping and playing. I even saw a deer behind the trees.

As I walked home, I felt the wind blowing through my long hair. Life is the superpower of Nature - the sun and soil help all plants grow, animals feed on the plants and birds feed on insects.

I love my backyard and I love my Nature.
