

Protection is a need in community because it helps keep everyone safe and helps people live a happy life, especially children. When people feel protected, they can trust others, they don't have to be defensive all the time.

Protection means being safe and not having danger or threats near you. A person can be protected by a guardian, like a parents or other relatives and friends, or by a safe place like home or school. Protection can also come from things that keep you safe, like rules.

I feel protected at home because it is a place where I feel safe. I also feel protected when I am around my parents, because they stay by my side. An example my parents agreed to enroll me in martial arts so I can grow stronger mentally and physically. That helps me feel more protected. And I know they're the people that protect me and want me safe

Another example is when my dad protected me from getting hacked. I downloaded a game because I thought it would be fun, but my dad got notified that my device was getting hacked. Thankfully, the safety feature was on, so my data was safe. And this is another way he protected me. This shows that dangers can happen in different ways—physically, mentally, and through technology.

And my friends they are supportive and help me during hard time. if I lost a game, they would comfort me encourage me to try again and that would make me confident again

My teachers they would help me if I was stuck or can't understand a problem.

And finally, your self can also protect yourself when there are no people to protect you. That's why I'm learning self-defense to protect myself when I don't feel safe.

Protection matters because it helps people feel safe, supported, and ready to enjoy life without being scared all the time. But not all people are the same.
