

My Dream Vacation: Artland at the Beach

By: Josie Armand

Age Group 5-8 Years Old (5 years old)

My dream vacation is imaginary. I would go to Artland at the beach. The water is rainbow colored paint and the umbrellas would be made of paintbrushes. The people at the beach would be crayons and the lifeguards would sit on top of easels. I would go to Artland on the weekend. On the day I go to Artland I would be excited. I would wake up and put on a rainbow bathing suit with a unicorn on it.

When we get to Artland, I would get a ticket to go on Artland beach. I would see crayons people when I get to Artland beach. Their skin would be the colors of the crayons in the crayon box. I would see crayon people that are red, orange, yellow, green, blue, purple, silver, gold, and maroon. The crayon people would be swimming in the ocean of paint, sitting on the seashore, laying under the paintbrush umbrellas, and watching the sea animals made out of pipe cleaners.

I would teach the crayon people how to surf, because I am their surfing teacher. After surfing class, they would show me where to find seashells. Collecting seashells is their tradition. They only collect seashells for one month during the year, to make sure the seashells come back the next year.

The crayon people collect the prettiest seashells to make art with them. That is why it is called Artland. Collecting seashells to make art projects would be special because I feel good when I do activities together with people.

I wish I was there right now.