

Robot Vacation to Saturn

Robot LP and TP were getting on the spaceship to blast off. Their destination was Pluto the dwarf planet. Humans were sending them on a vacation since they have been working so hard on Earth.

"Are you ready to go TP?" asked LP. "Yep, we could really use a vacation."
"You said it" said LP. 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 BLAST OFF!

"Hey TP we have a problem." "What is it?" asked TP. "A section of our rocket went out. We'll have to stop and fix it." "Ok" said TP, "the nearest planet is Saturn so we can stop there." "Got it" replied LP.

At Saturn LP and TP are trying to fix the ship. "What's wrong with it?" asked TP. "A piece of the motor broke off" LP said. "How?" asked TP. "Don't know" said LP. "Do you think it landed here?" asked TP. "Probably, I noticed it was missing as we were over this planet."

Meanwhile an alien sees the space ship and slowly wandered over to it. "Umm... do you uh... umm need any help?" asked the alien. "Sure we could use the help" said TP. They all introduced themselves and the three of them went looking for the piece.

As they were looking they chatted about each others worlds. The alien has never had any visitors so he enjoyed it and wanted them to stay. As they approached the last section of the planet, they noticed the alien was gone. They looked everywhere for him and they finally found him in his house.

"What are you doing in here?" asked TP. "Well, I found your piece a few minutes ago and I decided to take it here." "Why?" asked TP. "I never have any visitors and I wanted you to stay for company" said the alien. The Robots understood the alien and they promised they would come back after visiting Pluto. The alien was happy he had friends and LP and TP would come back much more.