

My Dream Vacation

By Ria Krishnan

If I could go anywhere on a vacation, I would go to the Arctic! I want to go there because I would get to see cute and furry animals like arctic foxes and polar bears.

And I did! I was sitting in my hotel with the fireplace on and watching out the window, seeing snow fall, drinking hot chocolate and reading a book with my headphones on. Then suddenly I heard a growling sound. "Eeek!" I screamed. Then, I realized it was just a polar bear fighting and chasing another one. That was weird. "Phew," at least it wasn't an abominable monster and just cute polar bears. I took off my headphones, put my book and hot chocolate down. I grabbed my camera and tried to capture a video of the two polar bears, but when I was about to capture the video they were gone. Oh well, maybe next time.

A howling sound startled me and I jumped out of my couch! It was kind of blurry from my view and it came closer to the window. It looked white and grey and it started howling again. That's when I saw it was an arctic fox. So I quickly got out my camera and managed to take a video this time. For some reason, my flash light was on and the arctic fox backed away. At least I got the video this time - shrug.

I felt a tap on my shoulder and I turned around - it was my mom. "Time to go home sweetie," she said. "But we barely spent any time here," I groaned. I put on my coat and said "Goodbye Arctic.". A few minutes later, I heard mom yelling again - "Get up sleepyhead, you are going to be late for school!" What a dream ... vacation.
