The Last Day (with a Twist)

My school year was coming to an end, and tomorrow was the last day of school. So I went to bed early. The next day I woke up and went to school early. I went to my classroom but... no body was there, all I could see was a machine. I thought my teacher was trying to surprise everybody. So I tip-toed to the machine. But it started pulling me in and I went inside the machine.

Then it teleported me to DogMan world so I started exploring. First I saw Cat jail. Then I climbed a steep mountain and saw Dog jail and the whole city. So I slid down the mountain and continued to explore. Then I found the police station and went inside. I went to chiefs office and asked him to give me a drink. Then I searched for Dog Man house. I finally found it and went inside. I went to the elevator and went up to the Grand Ballroom and found Dog Man and his friends playing. And when they saw me they started screaming "INTRUDER!!!". So I explained what happen and they finally calmed down then I suddenly saw the same machine so I went inside and it took me back to my classroom and finally saw my teacher and all my friends. Then I finally realized that off late, I have been reading a lot of DogMan comics that my imaginations are running wild. So I decided to join my classmates in the free choice time before my imaginations set me on another wild adventure.
